AMONG THE GOLD MINES

Manitou Continues to Make Great Progress, Paul Paulson Visits Rat Portage.

Mr. A. McLaren, of McLaren cheese fame, and Mr. J. M. Sweeney, a United States mining capitalist who is largely interested in South Dakota, and is a stockholder of the famous Homestake, have lately been paying a visit to this district, and saw among other properties the Big Master mine in the Manitou, near which Mr. Sweeney has some claims of his own. The manager of the mine was very busy when these gentlemen arrived, but with his usual courtesy, Mr. Pickering conducted them all through the workings, both surface and underground. Although want of time somewhat limited his observations Mr. Sweeney quite appreciated the work already accomplished. The advanced state of development underground was a revelation to him, and he thought there was then in sight sufficient ore to engage the attention of the 10 stamp mill for a period of ten years. Mr. Sweeney was very decided in his praise of the caution and careful business management which had actuated the directors and superintendent, and predicted that the stockholders would be the first to appreciate the benefits of this important feature in all mining undertakings.

Regarding his own investment Mr. Sweeney is well satisfied with the indications, which, so far as he was able to determine, greatly surpass his expectations, and he will be able to render such a favorable report to his associates as will warrant them turning their attention to this promising district.

It is a significant sign of the times when, to gentlemen like Mr. Sweeney, whose mining experience is of a purely business character, and whose connections include such vast undertakings as the renowned Homestake mine of South Dakota, the Manitou district should present such attractive possibilities for another extensive sphere of operation.

STAMP MILL RUNNING

The calculations of the management of the Big Master in the underground workings were amply confirmed last week says the Star, when the little vein increased in width to 14 feet, passing its previous high record, and disclosing a body of solid quartz of unsurpassed well as the work in the tunnel, where the vein is not yet cut through, although there is exposed 18 feet of solid quartz. Mr. Paulson is not alone in appreciation of his company's property, for Mr. Sweeney, of Detroit, in his brief tour of inspection, visited the locations and expressed himself in no unmeasured terms, not only of the high quality of the ore, but of the prospects of an unlimited quantity.

A NEW FIND.

Mr. A. Frank Deachman has discovered a big lode two miles north-east of the city boundary. Assays of the ore (qualitative only) made at the government laboratory describe the deposit as diorite rock matter—pyrrhotite in considerable quantity, containing iron pyrites, copper pyrites, gold, silver and nickel. A big specimen of the ore, at present in the Miner office, bears out this description and suggests strong a smelting proposition.

ADMIRE OUR SCENERY.

"Tatler," in the Winnipeg Tribune indulges in a pretty piece of word painting in describing Lake of the Woods scenery. His copy must have been written with a chromatic pencil, so vivid is the coloring. He says:

The above property is mining proposition upon us with its warm breezes and sunny days, many have deserted their city homes for the fairer regions of Rat Portage. Fair, indeed, it is, with the broad clear arms of the lake stretching far in between the picturesquely situated islands that stud the waters here and there. It would require the brush of some world-famed artist, or the pen of a poet laureate to rightly present the beauties of this summer resort as ideal in turn is brought to view. An ideal picture may be viewed in the balmy evenings when, from out a silvery cloud, the moon rises in her queenly state and sheds her beams upon the still waters, so still and peaceful as though a spirit breathed upon them. The effect is awe-inspiring, and one heaves a sigh of contentment at being so far permitted to enjoy this scenery, where nature reigns supreme.

Wind and weather have so far proved all that could be wished for.

heal. And so she wrote a book called "Science and Health," and made the tremendous revenues she received support a slander and a lie and build edifices which insult God Almighty."

Dr. Morse attacked the character of Mrs. Eddy bitterly and wound up by saying:

"Let me tell you it is not the book, with its twaddle and senseless terminology, that no reader in creation can understand; it is not the book, but the personality of the leader in Concord."

In closing his sermon Dr. Morse read what he said was a Christian Science prescription and prayer for the cure of dyspepsia.

A CANADIAN'S RESEARCHES.

A Deep-Sea Discovery Which Was Made by Sir John Murray.

When Sir John Murray, the Canadian scientist, began his work in oceanography some thirty-eight years ago, scientific knowledge of the sea was meagre and unsatisfactory. Something over three-fourths of the globe is covered with water, and there is a greater amount of life—far greater—both vegetable and animal in the water than on the land, and yet this storehouse of wonder—the great swarming seas of the world—had been almost unexplored. Huxley had awakened interest in the deep sea by his enthusiastic announcement of his famous Bathybiograph. In the course of examining a number of deep-water dredgings he had discovered traces of a gray gelatinous mass, somewhat resembling protoplasm. This he designated the primeval living slime, the unorganized beginning of life. It was a suggestion that caught the imagination, huxley in the sea bottom, in darkness and cold, floated, and had floated from the beginning, the essence of life from which the whole earth had been clothed with the green of plants and populated with thousands of varying forms of animal life. And if all life on land were to be laid low in a night, how would the slow, dull life-stock upon which could be built anew the fabric of creation?

But when Sir John Murray and the other scientists on the Challenger began to study the problem, they found that Huxley had been misled by the fact that strong animal, such as had been used for preserving the specimens collected, will throw down a chemical gelatinous precipitate from sea water. This muddy mass Huxley had erroneously called the Bathybiograph. A beautiful theory was thus demolished, but the structure of facts reared in its place was quite as wonderful.

Instead of being the first place on the earth to be inhabited, the deep sea, according to the conclusions of the scientists of the Challenger, was the last to be home, and it remained a shadowy water and competition for food grew stronger, the weak species were slowly driven into the deeper colder, and darker depths of the sea where they could live their lives with less interference, and their

THE FLINT LAKE MINE.

Manager Briedenbach, M.E., says he can begin producing gold bricks shortly.

The question is being asked: "Are not the Flint Lake people in too big a hurry installing their milling plant?" Mr. Briedenbach answers the question by stating that there is sufficient ore obtainable by quarrying to keep the mill running for fourteen months. The Krupp mill which is being installed will have the same capacity as a 30 stamp mill, 1,000 lbs. each, and will treat on tons a day. Average assays of the big Flint Lake lode run a ton over $19 so that in fourteen months counting the output of gold at $19 instead of $19, the mill should produce $218,000 worth of gold bullion—nearly a quarter of a million dollars.

Mr. Westerfield, in conversation with a Miner reporter said the contractors would begin work on the mill sometime in August, so that gold shipments ought to be arriving by Christmas.

Capt. Jones, one of the best mining foremen in this country has been engaged to take charge of the mining crew. He speaks very enthusiastically about "Flint Lake," which he declares is the biggest mining proposition on Lake of the Woods. When questioned about the Krupp mill, the captain replied that he knew nothing about it, as his experience has been entirely gained among American machinery.

But Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cured Her, and she is now Enjoying the Best of Health.

It is no uncommon occurrence for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to restore sufferers to health after doctors, and even the best of hospital treatment have failed to benefit them. Among those who have been benefited in this way is Mrs. John Potter, a lady well known in Wellandport, Ont. Speaking about her illness to a reporter, Mrs. Potter said:

"About three years ago I was greatly run down. My appetite was poor, I suffered from severe headaches and palpitation of the heart. I was very weak and had a constant feeling of weariness, which no amount of sleep could overcome. At night I perspired freely and would wake up in the morning with a very edged head.

Just a Reminder
The Rev. Dr. Frank Rogers Morse, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, in West Fifty-seventh street, delivered a sermon on "Christ the Healer, Not Christian Science" last evening. Of Christian Science he said:

"Christian Science is a piracy, an attempted piracy, on Christianity. It is a caricature of 'ethics.' It claims to inculcate the principles of God through a woman. It defies God everywhere. Inflated with scorn it attempts to beat man of that which God put in his life."
"Here is a science floating around in the air in New York and other parts of the country befooling people by saying there is no such thing as sin. Here is a woman living like a princess who claims that at the end of 1900 years she has been chosen to reveal to the world how to various forms of animal life. "Add it all up, and you will find that the slow, dull life upon land is but a faint shadow of the life upon the sea. But when Sir John Murray and the other scientists on the Challenger began to study the problem, they found that Huxley had been misled by the fact that strong alcohol, such as had been used for preserving the specimens collected, will throw down a chemical gelatinous precipitate from sea water, this flocculent mass floating had erroneously called the Bathysch. A beautiful theory was thus demolished, but the structure of facts rested in its place was quite as wonderful.

Instead of being the first place on the earth to be inhabited, the deep sea, according to the conclusions of the scientists of the Challenger, was the last. As he became indistinct in shallow waters, and as the species were slowly driven into the deeper, colder, and darker depths of the sea, where they could live their lives with less interference, and their bodies became slowly modified to suit the new conditions. As a consequence, life is now found everywhere in the sea, even in those awful depths five miles and more below the surface of the water. The entire surface of the world's oceans, though the water may seem ever so clear, is filled with life. To a depth of 300 feet there are both animals and plants; below that plant life ceases, and there are only animals. Indeed, the whole sea surface is a vast, rich meadow which supports the life of countless millions of animals, both on the surface waters, and on the green floor miles beneath. These animals, feeding on their own waving green pastures, are in turn the prey of larger animals, and in dying they drop down where the slow, crawling creatures of the great depths are lying in wait for them. It is not for this swarming life, the ocean would appear a dense black, for these little creatures serve to reflect the light of the sun and give the appearance of color to the water. In the greater depths of the sea, as is now well established, there is no light whatever, the rays of the sun penetrating only a few hundred feet. Some of the fish that live here have, therefore, developed a curious whip-like projection above their heads, on the end of which grows a red, hair-like, small bulb, producing their phosphorescent light. Most of them have huge mouths, and as they swim about through the water, other fish, perhaps some of those which have developed enormously large eyes, are lured straight into the ravenous mouth of the lantern-bearer, there to be digested at leisure. Other fish there are that creep their lives on the sea floor, clinging to the bottom and digesting the bits of vegetable or animal substances that remain to it after it has fallen through miles of sea water. Sir John Murray thinks it probable that the sea is the most fertile of all the world's laboratories.

WHY NOT?

You are in receipt of a handsome illustrated souvenir booklet of Victoria, B.C. This beautiful work is published by the Tourist Association of the city, consisting of the mayor, councilmen, board of trade, and leading business men of the place. Mr. Frank I. Clarke, who is well known as secretary of the association, cannot Rat Portage get up a similar organization, and send out similarly beautiful literature? Our territory is grander and more varied, we could make a most interesting book, by introducing the fascinating subject of gold mines.

FAVORITISM

After Monday next, July 29th, the Miner office will be open every day in the week, except Sunday, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., for the convenience of those whose subscriptions are due, and who are naturally anxious to pay a year or so ahead. We are aware of the fact that many people must be lying awake nights, thinking of their Miner subscription, and it is this desire to soothe the anxious ones, and ensure sweet rest, that induced us to go to the expense of providing this delightful service.

CHRISTIAN BARBARIANS.

The man who "loops the loop" at the Winnipeg Fair, shipped the winning down to terra firma on Wednesday and fell in a swoon. them, but gourmands, will no doubt feel anxious to know whether Switzerland will supply the buds, herbs and things required in the concoction so dear to the palates of diners out. WHAT IS LUCK?

There are wise and solemn men who disbelieve in what is called luck, swear that there isn't any such thing and teach their young that success is due to virtue and industry alone. Now, last week a gas and oil company was putting down a test well in Ohio. What was struck? O. nothing, but gold and coal. We do not say there was any luck about the matter, but it is curious how some folks find things and how the treasures in the bowels of the earth rush out at them. For example, Col. Jim Guffey, of Pennsylvania and various other states. He was prospecting for zinc in Arkansas last winter. One very cold day what was his surprise and pleasure to find coal, wood and hot soapstone on the same spot. If this is not luck, it is genius. —New York Sun

THE SLAVE MARKET

Natives of the Solomon Islands have killed the captain of what is politely called a "labor-recruiting vessel." These vessels are vulgarly termed "slavers," but they are bound by statutory enactments to return the blacks they "hire" at the end of a few years, provided the blacks want to be returned. The facilities for recording the wants of the blacks are not very perfect.

Recently there have been several cases of prominent men suddenly falling in a collapse just after eating a hearty meal. These men have all been under treatment for gastric "trouble," and yet the result shows that the treatment they had received had smothered the symptoms but had not retarded the progress of the disease.

There is a real danger in the use of palliatives when there is disease of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition. The disease in such cases goes on, while the distressing symptoms alone are stopped. Presently, like a smothered fire, the disease breaks out in new places, involving heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, or some other organ.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery results in a radical cure of diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures diseases of heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, etc., when the disease of these organs has its origin in the diseased condition of the stomach and digestive and nutritive system.

It will tell you what yourself and family think of your medicine, writes Mr. M. M. Wardwell.

Morals of the Child.

The moral development of the child begins almost as soon as its mental and the two march hand in hand. The home is the place where correct moral principles should be first instilled in the mind of the child, and neglect of this may mean endless suffering for parents and child. Too often this is left to the servants, relatives or the teacher later. The parent who can neglect this side of the child's development and trust it to somebody else is not worthy of the responsibility that has been conferred upon her. The neglect is not altogether intentional, but more often due to lack of energy and forethought. The work does not begin early enough, and the little mind gets warped before the lessons are taught. —Woman's Home Companion.

The Blush.

From the purely artistic point of view the power to blush is one of the most requisite and commendable of physical endowments. Old men are past blushing; very young children, idiots and the lower animals cannot blush; but it appears that some tribes still on the outskirts of barbarism preserve the faculty to an astonishing degree.

The blush is a grace of life, a mark of vitality and of youthfulness. It betokens a great cerebral sensibility seconded by a perfectly sensitive skin. By a sort of instinct for personal defense at the slightest attack—a word or a mere glance—there is a gush of energy, I say energy, and not emotion. The heart beats no faster, but a signal from the brain sends a rush of all the spare blood to the skin, and, owing to the congestion of the small blood vessels, an extraordinary glow spreads over the face to the tips of the ear, to the roots of the hair, to the throat, sometimes even to the top of the head.

Darwin saw the back of a young girl blush and declares that in certain circumstances blushing may enfeeble the whole body. It is as though the mind were hanging a curtain before the body to avert its right of precedence. —Le Figaro.

Killing a Baby.

When Frank H. Stockton had played out his book of Stinson's travels and was about ready to write it, he resided in Philadelphia. He had a business appointment with his dentist, an old friend, one day, when the following incident, told by himself, occurred.

"While in the chair I got to talking with this friend about my new book. I told him I had serious thoughts of killing that baby. He was much interested and we talked over the advisability of his staying in bed, as he was not yet up to his eyes in the matter."

LORD KITCHENER.

How the South African Commander-in-Chief Appeared in the Seventies.

M. Clermont Ganneau, the well-known archaeologist and writer on the antiquities of Palestine and Syria, has given a representative of The Paris Temps a very interesting account of his personal relations with Lord Kitchener in the early seventies, when the present Commander-in-Chief of the British forces in South Africa was engaged in Palestine upon a topographical mission for the Palestine exploration fund. When M. Ganneau met Lord Kitchener, towards the end of 1874, in Palestine, he was a Lieutenant in the Royal Engineers. With a few of his comrades he had been entrusted with the mission of preparing a map of that country for the Palestine exploration fund. M. Ganneau had been "lent" by the French Ministry for Foreign Affairs to this fund to make a special study of archaeological questions. It was then that he met Lord Kitchener, and he says that they often had occasion to see and consult one another. The French savant retains a pleasant recollection of this period. Lord Kitchener, he says, was a good fellow in the best sense of the word. He was original, and very frank and open in his character. His high spirits and gaiety, indeed, formed a pleasant contrast with the grave and serious character of some of his officers. He was an excellent disciplinarian, but gradually learned to interest himself in archaeological discoveries, and acquired an appreciable competence on this question. His most important researches related to the synagogues of Galilee.

M. Ganneau says he kept up his relations with Lord Kitchener for several years, and the Temps publishes a facsimile of one of the letters written by the present Commander-in-Chief. It is dated from

DON'T WANT OPINIONS

Rudyard Kipling, Premier Seaton, and Col. Sam Hughes were over-looked when coronation honors were being handed out. And yet all three are being hissing hot imperialists, one a writer, one a speaker, and the other a talker. Perhaps, however, the empire looks for deeds, not opinions; where it confers honors.

POSTAGE STAMPS

There are about 6,000 different kinds of postage stamps in existence.
The museum of the Herlin Post Office, which contains between 4,000 and 5,000 specimens, of which half come from Europe, and the remainder divided between Asia, Africa, America, and Australia. Some of the stamps "bear coats-of-arms; and the emblems impartially borrowed from the heavens above, the earth beneath, and the waters under the earth—stars, eagles, lions, horses, reptiles, railway trains, and other careful wild fowl." There are therefore, the effigies of five emperors, twenty kings, two queens, one and duke, several interior, titled rulers, and many presidents.

CHICAGO AGAIN.

I hope that in the near future, and Professor Guthrie, at the University of Chicago, "the human race will so improve that Shakespeare will be held unfit to read." Pope

UTTERING GARBAGE

Mayor Low, of New York, is trying to introduce into that city the English system of utilizing the city garbage for city lighting. This is one in Britain, both in London and in smaller towns. The garbage is collected by being disposed in proximity to the furnace in which it is burned and consumed as fuel for the production of electric power, and that "the operation there is usual in the hands of contractors who enter the punk contract for the consumption of the garbage and the furnishing of the light. The result is extreme economy to the town which by this process practically rids itself of its garbage for nothing.

GRATITUDE

Preparations are being made by members of the Grande Chartreuse convent to the Switzerland, whether they have already sent their magnificent libary. They will, of course, try their mysterious "recipe" with received and smothered the symptoms but had not retarded the progress of the disease.

There is a real danger in the use of palliatives when there is disease of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition. The disease in such cases goes on, while the distressing symptoms alone are stopped. Presently, like a smothered fire, the disease breaks out in new places, involving heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, or some other organ.

"The use of Dr.
Pierce's Golden
Medical Discovery
yields results in a radical cure of diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures diseases of heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, etc., when the disease of these organs has its origin in the diseased condition of the stomach and digestive and nutritive system.

"I will tell you what myself and family think of your medicine," writes Mr. M. M. Warfield, of London, and Newburgh, C. Canada. "It will do what you say, and more. I was taken sick nine years ago. I got so weak I couldn't walk. I was hardly in bed, was that way two or three months. I picked up one of Dr. Pierce's Memorandum Books one day and saw your description of catarrh of the stomach. I thought it might be my case. We had a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the house that was sent for my mother. You recommended it.
Catarrh of the stomach, so I went to taking it.
The one bottle nearly cured me. I got two bottles next time and took one and one-half and was well. Your medicine cost me three dollars and the doctor cost me fourteen dollars."

Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on

Paine's Celery Compound

Will Banish the Summer Blues and Other Distresses that Make Life Miserable and Unhappy.

The hot summer when we hear and women complaining about their unhappy and half-dead condition. They find that physical and mental energy has deserted them, and they are sinking deeply in the pit of despondency.

The hot summer weather always produces thousands of miserable feeling mortals. They lack nerve force, strength and true vitality. They cannot rest day or night, and life becomes a burden.

The great recuperator, builder and strengthening for all weary, worn-out and suffering people is Paine's Celery Compound. It is the only prescribed by medical men. When the great medicine is used at this season of languor, despondency, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache, dyspepsia and digestive troubles, are permanently banished, and men and women go about their duties and work with a vim, will and energy that indicate health and physical strength. Mrs. Anna Dan-son, Wilkesport, Ont., says:

"I consider it a pleasure to put on record what Paine's Celery Compound has done for me. I have been afflicted with nervousness and sleeplessness. All ordinary medicines failed, and nothing met my case until I used Paine's Celery Compound. Now I never miss a night's sleep. I strongly recommend your medicine to all nervous sufferers."

Killing a Baby.

When Frank R. Stockton had planned out his book of Pomona's travels and was about ready to write it, he resided in Philadelphia. He had a business appointment with his dentist, an old friend, one day, when the following incident, told by himself, occurred:

"While in the chair I got to talking, with this friend about my new book. I told him I had serious thoughts of killing that baby. He was much interested. We talked over the advisability of doing this, and, while he was not quite convinced, he in the main agreed with me. I had been slain with and chapsing his hand, went into the waiting room on my way out. This waiting room was filled with women.

"As I passed through the door I heard him call, 'Then you have positively decided to kill that baby?' Positively," I replied.

"You should have seen the women store. It was not until I got well out in the hallway that I realized what they must of course have been thinking."

Milnes' Hospitable Menagerie.

W. Gordon McCabe says that when Monckton Milnes, the poet, aspired to grasp the social literary scepter falling from the withered hands of Rogers he gathered around his breakfast table in Full Mall men of the most diverse personalities, creeds and tastes. In fact, the chief requirement for securing an invitation to these breakfasts, which soon became the talk of London, seems to have been that the guest must be a lion of some sort. Men of such pronounced differences as Count d'Orsay, the elegant dandy; the rugged Thomas Carlyle; Sydney Smith, the brilliant wit, and Count Thiers, the grave historian, sat there side by side, and had Buffalo Bill burst upon the town in those days Mr. McCabe thinks he, too, would undoubtedly have rubbed elbows in Milnes' hospitable menagerie with Tom Macaulay and Aubrey de Vere.

Wellington's Release.

The Duke of Wellington was one day sitting at his library table when the door opened and without any announcement in stilled a figure of sin-gularity in view.

"Who are you?" asked the duke in his short and dry manner, looking up without the slightest change of countenance upon the intruder.

"I am Apollyon. I am sent here to kill you."

"Kill me? Very odd."

"I am Apollyon and must put you to death."

"Barged to do it to-day?"

"I am not to do it to-day or the hour, but I must do my mission."

"Very inconvenient; very busy; great many letters to write. Call again or write me word. I'll be ready for you."

"The duke then went on with his correspondence. The matter, appalled probably by the stern, immovable old gentleman, backed out of the room and in half an hour was in an apartment."

...expedition fund. Mr. Ganneau had been "lent" by the French Ministry for Foreign Affairs to this fund to make a special study of archaeological questions. It was thus that he met Lord Kitchener, and he says that they often had occasion to see and consult one another. The French savant retains a pleasant recollection of this period.
Lord Kitchener, he says, was a good fellow in the best sense of the word. He was original and very frank and open in his character. His high spirits and gaiety, indeed, formed a pleasant contrast with the grave and serious character of some of his comrades. He was an excellent draftsman, but gradually commenced to interest himself in archaeological discoveries, and acquired an appreciable competence on this question. His most important researches related to the synagogues of Galilee.

Mr. Ganneau says he kept up his relations with Lord Kitchener for several years, and The Temps publishes a facsimile of one of the letters written by the present Commander-in-Chief. It is dated from the South Kensington Museum, July 12, 1878, and is as follows:—

"My dear Mr. Ganneau:—Many thanks for your very interesting letter. I am afraid I gave you a great deal of trouble with the large inscription at Tyre. I have the original. It was found in a tomb, and is beautifully cut on thin white marble. By your kindness in answering my former letter so fully, I am tempted to send you another inscription found near Gaza on a pillar. (Here follows the inscription.) The lower part is cut off.
I am thinking of publishing this in the next quarterly, so if you gave me any notes on it they would appear from you immediately under it.
With many thanks for your kindness.
Believe me, yours sincerely, H. H.
Kitchener."

PRINCESS RADZIWIŁL

Sketch of the Career of this Titled Adventurer Now in Prison.

Princess Katharine Radziwill, who has just been sentenced to two years in prison at Cape Town, comes of an old Polish family, that of Kzowuska.
She married Prince William Radziwill, and one of her three children is now Princess Blucher. She resided for some years in St. Petersburg, and then in Berlin. It was during a casual visit to London that she first met Mr. Rhodes. Those who believe in the "evil eye" will find confirmation of their superstition in the fact that no less than three people concerned in the case or mixed up with the Princess' affairs have died since criminal proceedings were first instituted against her—to wit, Mr.
Rhodes, Dr. Scholtz of Cape Town, and Captain Penfold, a director of the De Beers Company. Princess Radziwill visited Cape Town in 1900, her object, it was said, being to sow dis-sentiment between Government House, to which she had letters of introduction, and Groot Schuur, by repeating to Mr. Rhodes wholly imaginary "conversations she had had with Lord Albion. Sir Alfred Milner. She is given the credit for the discovery of a new medium of intrigue—the typewriter. To many persons of standing she had read private instructions she professed to have received from the highest authorities in England, the Prime Minister among them, of an extraordinary and even a startling character. When asked whether the Princess showed them the originals of the uniform reply was, "No, they were typewritten copies, which she used to avoid the danger of losing the originals." It was said that she was acting for Dr. Layde.

THREE STAR

A NATION'S STEPS.

A Political Issue or Two That Need Broader Views for the Majority of the Canadian People.

In the first session of the Parliament of Canada, after Lord Dufferin's appointment His Excellency was confronted with a question which tested him as a constitutional ruler, and subjected him to a good deal of ad-versive criticism from the Liberal side.
 The Government of Sir John Macdonald had just returned from the polls with a majority. When Parliament met, the Opposition preferred, through Hon. L. S. Huntington, a charge of corruption in connection with the Pacific Railway charter against the Government. Sir John Macdonald referred the charge to a special committee. It was found that the committee could not take evidence on oath, and an Oaths Bill was introduced and passed. There were doubts as to the validity of the act, and Lord Dufferin, after assenting to it, forwarded it at once to England for consideration. A storm promptly broke out. It was alleged that His Excellency, who had followed the royal instructions, had hastened the act to England with a view to securing its disallowance, and thus shielding his Ministers. In due time Parliament adjourned to meet again when the reply from England should have arrived. During the recess the act was disallowed. Then renewed assaults accompanied by charges of partisanship were made upon the Governor. His Excellency, who was at Halifax at the time, met the attacks in a good-humored speech. He said no person was authorized to attribute to him any opinions or sentiments with respect to any political topic. As to the attacks upon himself he declared that in spite of them he would be guided by Parliament, and that these castigations were as transitory and innocuous as the discipline occasionally applied to their flock by the unsophisticated fowling sports of Mumbo Jumbo when their harvests are short or a murrain visits their flocks. "This was at once a polite response to the assaults, and an intimation that the Governor would be influenced by constitutional rules alone.

The disallowance of the Oaths Bill destroyed the usefulness of the Parliamentary Committee. To meet the situation Sir John Macdonald proposed that the committee should be invested with the powers of a commission. This proposition was rejected by the Opposition leaders. A commission of judges was therefore decided upon. Meanwhile Parliament reassembled and Sir John advised a "protection. Lord Dufferin accepted the advice, with the condition that there should be an early session to consider the commission's report. At once the Opposition protested. It claimed that inquiry had been purposely delayed, and in an interview with Lord Dufferin, demanded that Parliament should continue in session until the issue was settled. His Excellency pointed to the necessity for and the conditions of prorogation, and informed the Opposition that it was impossible for him to act against that of Ministers who had a majority in Parliament. This produced a new campaign against the Governor. His Excellency was denounced from end to end of the land as a traitor. King John a James H. and Charles I. called into one. But the principle of Parliamentary rule was steadily adhered to. The Government of the day of the storm. Late in the night the wind and waves abated.
 Sir John Macdonald resigned, and Mr. Mackenzie succeeded him.

MALE CANDY FIENDS

ONE MAN EATS 400 POUNDS OF CHO-COLATES DURING THE SUMMER.

The Matinee Girl, Is Simply Not in It With Some of the Men—One Who Goes On Candy Spree—Was Craving for Fits and Starts—Kats It to Be Doing Something.

Ever since far-seeing dealers began putting candy into artistic, pasteboard boxes fringed with ingenious designs of paper lace and tied with gold or silver cord, the title of "Candy fiend" has clung with inseparable tenacity to the matinee girl. But in Toronto, at least, says The Sunday World, the matinee girl is not the only one who has a pronounced and assertive sweet tooth. There are others who have the candy habit with all of its pernicious seductions, and strangely enough those others are men.

In point of numbers women who have the candy habit dominate men similarly afflicted, but in this respect only can they be said to occupy a position to the fore. For when a man becomes a candy fiend he develops into the worst kind of a fiend, resorts to lavish expenditures and injects candy eating into his business as well as his social diversions.
 An American city is said to have one man alone who during a single summer ate 400 pounds of chocolate creams, a record sufficiently startling to cause even the most perfectly developed matinee girl to blush for shame. This man has made several attempts to "swear off," but as yet hasn't succeeded, and the enemy pursues him as relentlessly to-day as when he first became a "candy fiend." A citizen of Toronto suffers from what he calls candy sprees, and, according to his own admission, is as helpless when the desire for candy strikes him as the most helpless slave to liquor. His periodicals come on every three weeks with remarkable regularity. He may be sitting at his desk, walking along the streets or even lying in bed when the idea strikes him, but this matter is not for when his sweet tooth begins to assert itself there is but one thing for him to do—start out to find a candy store.

This man never buys in large quantities, for he never knows just how long the desire for something sweet will pursue him. Sometimes it lasts but a day or two, while again it will continue for a week. While on one of these "periodicals" the candy slave is never without a little bag of sweets, except when asleep. Even then he is not free, for he sometimes wakes up in the night suffering from the same burning desire for more candy. After eating a little he goes back to sleep perfectly satisfied. A strange peculiarity of the habit is that it fastens itself upon the man is that after the "fiend" has left him he couldn't be induced to taste candy for any consideration.

"The stuff is absolutely repulsive to me except when I am on one of my sprees," he says. "This candy eating is no joke with me. I sometimes try to throw off the desire when it lays hold of me, but I find that I cannot work without candy, for my nerves become all unstrung, and nothing will satisfy me. Naturally, it seems foolish to most people, but with me it is a serious matter. I usually buy chocolate creams, and assembled and Sir John advised a prorogation. Lord Dufferin accepted the advice, with the condition that there should be an early session - to consider the commission's report. At once the opposition protested. It claimed that inquiry had been purposely delayed, and in an interview with Lord Dufferin, demanded that Parliament should continue in session until the issue was settled. His Excellency pointed to the necessity for and the conditions of prorogation, and informed the Opposition that it was impossible for him to advise against that of Ministers who had a majority in Parliament. This produced a new campaign against the Governor. His Excellency was denounced from end to end of the land as another King John, a James II., and a Charles I., rolled into one. But the principle of Parliamentary rule was steadily adhered to by the Governor in spite of the storm. Late in the year the wind and waves abated. Sir John Macdonald resigned, and Mr. Mackenzie succeeded him.

The spirit in which Lord Dufferin treated Sir John Macdonald and his colleagues was observed in the treatment accorded to Mr. Mackenzie. A difficult situation arose during Mr. Mackenzie's regime owing to the non-fulfillment of the terms of union with British Columbia. The Pacific Railway was to have been built within ten years, but it had not been commenced, and there were those on the Pacific Coast who talked of secession. Mr. Edgar was sent over to suggest terms, and later Lord Carriarum reached terms with the province, a condition of which was the building in the meantime of a railway from Esquimalt to Nanaimo. This bill preparing for this railway was introduced in the Commons. But it was thrown out by the Senate. At once all feeling in the West was strengthened. It was assumed that the Government had contributed to the defeat of its own measure, and to the breach of the second agreement. Lord Dufferin, in this emergency, spent to the Pacific Coast and examined into the question. On his arrival in Victoria the usual triumphal arches were there. But over one was inscribed the words "Separation from the Dominion." His Excellency called for the persons responsible for the legend, and told them that he would pass under the arch on one condition, and that a very small one, namely, the amendment of the motto by changing "it" instead of an "S" as the first letter in the first word. This good natured suggestion was not accepted. So His Excellency passed "it" instead of "under" the arch. Leaving the province Lord Dufferin delivered at Victoria a notable speech, dealing with the cause of dissatisfaction. He admitted that the province had been disappointed. He declared that his Ministers had not been the responsible parties. He pictured the distant Columbia out of the Confederation with the Pacific Railway uniting with southern lines and leaving the province high and dry without direct communication with the East. Then he pointed to the fact that the railway would yet come, and urged his hearers to add it by union rather than to resort to isolation, and to be without it. The good changed the current of thought in the West, and if the union had been in danger, it saved it.

the pursue him. Sometimes he lasts but a day or two, while again he will continue for a week. While on one of these "periodicals" the candy slave is never without a little bag of sweets, except when asleep. Even then he is not free, for he sometimes wakes up in the night suffering from the same burning desire for more candy. After eating a little he goes back to sleep perfectly satisfied. A strange peculiarity of the habit, as it has fastened itself upon this man is that after the "fever" has left him he couldn't be induced to taste candy for any consideration.

"The stuff is absolutely repulsive to me except when I am on one of my sprees," he says. "This candy eating is no joke with me. I sometimes try to throw off the desire when it lays hold of me, but I find that I cannot cope without candy, for my nerves become all unstrung, and nothing will satisfy me. Naturally, it seems foolish to most people, but with me it is a serious matter. I usually buy chocolate creams, and carry a small bag of them around with me. I never eat more than 25 or 30 cents' worth a day. The minute the 'spree' works itself out I lose my desire for candy and the taste of a chocolate cream with some times make me sick. I go along in this way until the next periodical arrives, and then it is the same story over again. I have tried to quit it, but have never been able to hold out more than one day."

Candy dealers, who, perhaps, are better qualified to judge the consuming properties of each individual sweet tooth, assert that men buy fully as much candy as women, and not all of it is intended for future delivery, either. There is, however, a difference in the manner in which men and women make purchases. Men buy in five and ten cent lots, so they can carry the sweet stuff in their pockets and eat it while walking along the street. Women usually lean toward pretty pasteboard boxes and most of their candy eating is done either at home or in the theatre. But as to persons who suffer from the candy habit, well developed types are to be found among both men and women.

"Certainly there are candy fiends," said a Yonge street merchant, "and it would be hard to say whether men or women have the habit to a more pronounced degree. The candy habit is like every other habit that fastens itself upon humanity. A good many people eat sweet stuff because they like it, while others devour it simply to do something. They are the habitual candy eaters."

"I know several men who buy candy three and four times every day and I suppose they could be called fiends. One man who comes in here never thinks of going back to his office after lunch or in the afternoon's worth of peppermint, langes with him. Another buys peanut candy every morning on his way down to work. He is so regular with his calls that our clerks have quit asking him what he wants. When he enters the door they begin weighing out the candy. Offentimes not a word is spoken."

Also men, given somewhat to periodical encounters with liquids incorporate has found in chocolate cream a helpful remedy after a night with the boys. He keeps a box of creams in his room at all times. When he wakes up in the morning, suffering the tortures of his inebrious past he eats two or three of them.

These are the best things I ever found to settle my stomach after it has been unduly upset," he says. "Sounds strange, I know, but I have tried them and know whereof I speak."

The Caterers of Winnipeg have decided against coming to Rat Portage for their annual holiday on account of the towns refusing them a cash bonus. People who expect to get a cash bonus for spending a day in the finest summer resort in Canada, are deserving of the same consideration as the small boy who won't eat strawberries and cream. He got spanked.

The garden party at Mrs. Cameron's last Tuesday was a big success in every way, and those composing the committee of management, of St. Alban's Ladies' Aid, are to be congratulated. The grounds illuminated by Chinese lanterns, looked like a scene from Alice in Wonderland. Mrs. Gagne and Mrs. Ferguson attributed local numbers to the evening.

Amely Explained.

St. Alban's Epworth's members, recently published, tell the following.

"I recollect a discussion between a Scotch lord and Lady Clement as to the merits of the other side of the border."

"How is it," said she, "that the Scots who leave Scotland are usually men of more ability than those who remain at home?"

"Ah, madam," he responded, "with an effort at persnasion, the reason is obvious. At every outlet there are persons stationed to examine all who pass, that for the honor of the country, no one be permitted to leave it who is not a man of understanding."

I suppose then," murmured Genevieve, "that the bordering guard have been smuggling."

The Difficulty With Chinese

The difficulty of a foreigner learning the Chinese language is well known. The statement of an English traveler, he and his companion, supplied themselves with a Chinese grammar. In a day or two the discovery was made that the single letter 'I' had 145 ways of being pronounced and that each pronunciation had an entirely different meaning. Then it dawned upon them that there was no point about the Chinese language. It was not worth learning, and their grammar was hurriedly consigned to the river mud by being dropped overboard.

NORTHWEST FRUIT.

May River Crop in Ontario-Interesting Paper by Dr. Saunders.

The Geological and Biological section met immediately on the adjournment of the main body of the Royal Society of Canada in Toronto recently, and during its session, Dr. Saunders read his paper describing experiments in plant breeding at the experimental farms. He described the work that was being done by the farms in endeavoring to stock Manitoba with a hardy variety of fruit. They first introduced the Siberian apple, which bears a fruit little larger than an Ontario apple, and crossed it with the Ontario apple. The result was an apple about an inch in diameter. About four hundred of these had been crossed, and last year they had thirty trees bearing fruit. This year about seventy would be produced from the seedlings were being raised from the crosses, and these were being again crossed with the Ontario fruit. They retained the hardness of the Siberian apple, but the more the crosses the nearer they came to the Ontario fruit. It had been found impossible to raise good apples of size, but hardy ones were secured, and two of the new doing well. In the west, a selector had also secured a cross of the Siberian and Ontario, and had been successful. A cross between the two and two varieties of pines had been tried, both were successful. The fruit raised in this cross was smaller and possessed the characteristics of the ordinary plum.

According to Dr. Saunders' opinion it will be possible to produce hardy varieties of all the more common Ontario fruits which will thrive on the Canadian North West. There is addition to being the greatest wheat-producing region in the world, it will also rival the older provinces as a fruit producer. This time is believed to be not far distant either as grafts from the present apple trees are being forwarded to farmers throughout the province.
